

Sleeping Americans Guilty in 50,000 Vietnam War Murders !

By JOHN STEINBACHER

The Ghosts of 50,000 American dead walk the streets of America tonight, their spectral presence crying in vain for redress of their grief. An American president, Richard Milhous Nixon, has surrendered to the enemy who killed them, in the flower of their youth, in a distant land to which our government sent them.

No amount of rationalizing, of apologizing, of hypocritical rhetoric can change this one stark, horrifying fact. America's war dead died for nothing. They did not die to save the world from Communism — as their leaders had told them — nor did they die to save America as the last hope of freedom.

The dead Americans, trundled back to lonely graves on their native soil, died to insure the success of Communism around the world.

That is the message of Richard Nixon's love affair with the enemy who provided the guns and bullets to shatter the flesh and bones of America's young in South Vietnam and Korea.

Yes, those young men, the nation's finest men, gave up their lives before they had a chance to begin to live because our elected leaders told them they were going to save the South Vietnamese from Communist oppression.

Now, after more than 50,000 of these gallant heroes have died, their President, in the gravest betrayal in all American history — if not, in fact, the greatest betrayal in the history of the world — is sitting down to dine with the very enemy who laid them in their premature graves.

Where are the outraged mothers and fathers of America? Where are the millions of veterans who fought wars of their own and who came back to a land of freedom? Where are the voices of the men who fought at Bastogne, at Chateau Thierry, at Normandy, at Iwo Jima? Are there no brave men left in this land? Are there none who can muster the courage to stand tall and shout, ENOUGH?

Where is the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the score of veteran organizations in this hour of national shame and eternal disgrace? We hear no cries from the men who fought World War II to ensure that freedom would survive in the world. Instead, we must listen for the ghostly voices of those who have died — because only they know the ultimate sacrifice, the ultimate outrage, the bite of the bullet into flesh, the searing, tearing, life stifling finality of it.

If the living will not stand up and protest, perhaps only the dead can have the courage, the outrage to cry aloud to all the world: "We have been betrayed, we have died for nothing — and our fellow countrymen care nothing that their elected leaders have sent us blindly and loyally to a death we did not deserve."

What about it America? Are you prepared to face the consequences of your own ultimate immorality, the slaughter of your own children by your "respected" national leaders in purposefully no-win wars in order to advance the cause of slavery around the world — the political chess game, with your sons as the real live pawns?

If you are ready to accept the consequences without a murmur, without a protest, without an angry demand that those who committed the crime of murdering 50,000 of your young be made to pay for their crime, then you no longer deserve to survive either individually or as a nation.

If you, fellow American, can look in your "guilt"-edged mirror in your mortgaged ranch house and say that all is well, then this greatest of all nations has reached the end of the road — it is condemned by your own actions to sure and certain death.

Can you wonder that your young have "turned off" of America and all its hopes and dreams when they see their parents accepting the deaths of 50,000 of their fellow youngsters without a complaint, without a murmur, without a demand that justice be done to those American "leaders" who have brought this nation to this sorry state?

Fellow Republicans, fellow Democrats, fellow Independents — where do you stand? The dead wait in vain to hear your voices! They wait in vain to hear your protest! They wait in vain to see your action! They wait in vain for you to put aside hypocrisy and false rhetoric! They wait in vain to see you and your fellow Americans rise as one to put a stop to surrender and retreat in the face of the most vicious enemy in our history!

Fellow American, the voices of your 50,000 dead in Vietnam condemn you — in the stillness of night in your small American town or your teeming city. The voices of your dead sons warn you — no nation can survive that turns its back on those who have fought and died for it.

And the voices of your imprisoned sons and brothers cry out from the hell of a Chinese or North Vietnamese prison — but those voices find few ears willing to hear, so busy are you, fellow American, at your local bowling alley, at your bridge club, at your night club, at your local bar, at your country club, yes — and even at your local church or PTA meeting.

No nation can survive the ultimate immorality of those who turn their backs on their own war dead — and America has done just that.

No nation can survive YOU, fellow American, because you are betraying the last best hope of earth by your apathy, your concern with affluence, your search for fleshly pleasures, your greed and your selfishness.

No nation can survive a people who vote into office those who murder their sons in purposefully no-win wars.

VICTORY DENIED

By ARCHIBALD E. ROBERTS,
Lieutenant Colonel, AUS, Retired

Every patriot should read a copy of VICTORY DENIED, the book which precipitated a national campaign to challenge the unconscionable policy of "Perpetual War for Perpetual Peace," and we hope that you will want your friends to read it, too.

Historically significant and politically provocative Victory Denied has been read by nearly a quarter of a million Americans.

It is chillingly apparent that a bewildered nation is being conditioned to commit her blood and treasure to another United Nations "No-Win" war "to defend America against Communist aggression" in the Mideast.

If the facts about U.N. control of U.S. military forces are to reach a significant number of citizens to prevent another Vietnam, the small band of informed patriots, of whom you are one, must undertake the mission of public education and leadership in this crisis.

Your decision in the time it takes to read this notice will tell whether or not we will continue to march blindly toward an Orwellian, 1984, animal farm and national oblivion . . . or, if Americans will rise up and reject the doctrine of defeat and defend their heritage.

BEHIND MURDER OF LIN PIAO

The Nixon-Kissinger visit to Red China was preceded by bloodshed. "Nixinger" went to China to cement the "Third World" alliance of Jewish and colored nations against the white nations of the world, including Russia. The mission failed. Lin Piao was eager to jump at the Jewish bait; but Lin Piao was murdered at an airport. Chou En Lai gave Nixon a conversation but not much else. Chou En Lai is not too eager to tie China to the Zionist chariot wheels. The U.S.A. and Israel are becoming more and more isolated in a hostile world. Our Taiwan observer sends this information about Lin Piao. — Editor.

The costly, noisy and showy last political trick of the Tricky Dick resulted so far in only two visible assets: a pair of giant pandas which he got as a present from Chou En-lai, and the fact that the distinguished visitors could ascertain themselves that Lin Piao, Chairman's "Best Friend and Heir-Apparent," is really down and out. . .

Moreover, it was discovered that Lin Piao's "Introduction" to the world-famous Mao's Red Book was deleted from its last editions.

Years ago, when Stalin's "Best Friend and Protector" Lavrenty Beria liquidated his boss and was, in turn, shot later by Marshal Joukov's soldiers, it took lots of time and trouble to erase from the Soviet books and periodicals all laudatory passages published there about that abominable Georgian Jew.

The poor editors of the Great Soviet Encyclopedia had to print a special article about Behring Sea which was mailed to all known owners of that Encyclopedia with the instruction to cut off the offending pages about Beria, and to replace them with those of the Sea.

But now Peking is confronted with a far more complicated problem.

Mao's Red Book with Lin Piao's foreword was published in untold millions of copies. It can be found not only in every hut in Red China, but all around the world as well as translated into different languages.

Many Chinese eager beavers, to show their zeal and adoration of both Mao and Lin Piao, learned that booklet, foreword including, by heart, and can recite verbatim passages from it suitable to any given occasion.

It is quite certain that an order was already issued to tear off Lin Piao's lines from the booklets, and to destroy those dangerous pages immediately.

But what to do with the men's memories? THAT is the question! All water of the Behring Sea would not be sufficient to wash out the words of Lin Piao from the brains of millions and millions of persons who read and re-read that book most diligently.

The most radical — and logical — solution would be to shoot down all those who have read this Red Book in the past — but WHO would then remain to study its new editions?

Frankly speaking, we are at loss what should be recommended to erase Lin Piao's name from the books, posters, magazines, brochures — and human memories . . .

Perhaps the "Wise Man of Zion," Dr. H. Kissinger, being much more clever than we, during his visits to Peking helped his new friend Chou En-lai to resolve this vexing problem.

CHANGING TIMES

"Before his departure to Peking, President Nixon asked the American people to PRAY together with him for the success of his mission." (Newspapers).

There is no question whatever that the same hand which had paid thirty shekels of silver to Mr. Judas Iscariot some two thousand years ago had to deal recently with a modern Judas Iscariot, Mr. Richard R. Nixon, for his mission of betrayal of his nation, principles and friends. But certainly the stakes were much, much higher.

But the "technique" of betrayal changed with the ages: the first did it with a KISS, and the second with a PRAYER . . .

History will remember "Nixon's Prayer" as it remembers "Judas' Kiss!"
